

Let This Mind be in You

Ps 40: 8

Psalm 37:4.

- True happiness is to be found, not in self-indulgence and self-pleasing, but in learning of Christ, taking His yoke, and bearing His burden. Those who trust to their own wisdom and follow their own ways, go complaining at every step, because the burden which selfishness binds upon them is so heavy and its yoke so galling. They might change all this if they would but come to Jesus and by His grace put off the yoke that links them to Satan, ... take the burden which Christ gives them, and let His yoke bind them to Him in willing, happy service.

- “There is a constant temptation for human being to consider that the influence they have gained is the result of something valuable in themselves. [...] The Lord does not work with these, for He will not give to any human being the glory that belongs to His own name...He makes the humble, trustful servant His representative – the one who will not lift himself up and thinks of himself more highly than he ought to think. The life of such one will be dedicated to God as a living sacrifice and that life He will accept and use and sustain. He longs to make men wise with His own wisdom, that that wisdom may be exercised in His own behalf. He manifest himself through the consecrated humble worker”

- E.G. White, That I May Know Him, 88.4

1 Cor 15:19

Micah 6:8

- True holiness and humility are inseparable. The nearer the soul comes to God, the more completely is it humbled and subdued. When Job heard the voice of the Lord out of the whirlwind, he exclaimed, “I abhor myself, and repent in dust and ashes” (Job 42:6). It was when Isaiah saw the glory of the Lord and heard the cherubim crying, “Holy, holy, holy, is the Lord of hosts,” that he cried out, “Woe is me! for I am undone” (Isaiah 6:3, 5). Daniel, when visited by the holy messenger, says, “My comeliness was turned in me into corruption” (Daniel 10:8). Paul, after he was caught up into the third heaven and heard things that it was not lawful for a man to utter, speaks of himself as “less than the least of all saints” (Ephesians 3:8). It was the beloved John, who leaned on Jesus’ breast and beheld His glory, who fell as one dead before the angel. The more closely and continuously we behold our Saviour, the less shall we see to approve in ourselves.

- E.G. White, That I May Know Him, 175.3

Philippians 2: 5-9

- “There is a constant temptation for human being to consider that the influence they have gained is the result of something valuable in themselves. [...] The Lord does not work with these, for He will not give to any human being the glory that belongs to His own name...He makes the humble, trustful servant His representative – the one who will not lift himself up and thinks of himself more highly than he ought to think. The life of such one will be dedicated to God as a living sacrifice and that life He will accept and use and sustain. He longs to make men wise with His own wisdom, that that wisdom may be exercised in His own behalf. He manifest himself through the consecrated humble worker”

- Goodness, meekness, gentleness, patience, and love are the attributes of Christ's character. If you have the spirit of Christ, your character will be molded after His character

- E.G. White, That I May Know Him, 94.6

Matthew 18:1-4

- The greatest service we can render to the cause of God, and which will reflect steady beams of light upon the pathway of others, is to be patient, kind, steadfast as a rock to principle, God-fearing. This will constitute us the salt of the earth, the light of the world. We shall be often disappointed, for we shall not find perfection in those who are connected with us, and they will not see perfection in us. It is only by agonizing effort on our part that we shall become unselfish, humble, childlike, teachable, meek and lowly of heart, like our divine Lord. We must bring our hearts and minds up to a high point of education in spiritual and heavenly things.

• E.G. White, That I May Know Him, 186.2